Courses taught in English and in other foreign languages

a) Every faculty offers a variety of courses and seminars, mostly in English. Faculties present the lists of courses on their websites:

- ✚ Faculty of Arts <http://www2.ff.cuni.cz/FF-945.html>
- ✚ Faculty of Social Sciences <http://fsveng.fsv.cuni.cz/FSVEN-420.html>
- ✚ Faculty of Law <http://www.prf.cuni.cz/en/>

Please note that only the CU faculties listed above participate in the cooperation with your home university. Should you wish to study at a faculty which does not, contact me in advance to find out if you can choose some courses there.

b) A list of courses in English, German and French can be also found on the website for Erasmus+ exchange students <http://www.cuni.cz/UKEN-364.html>. These courses are available to non-European students.

c) There is also a central database of courses on

<https://is.cuni.cz/studium/eng/predmety/index.php?KEY=Az1>

Insert the name of the searched subject in the box "title" and all relative courses at various CU faculties will appear. Or choose a faculty/and department and language and all available courses will show up.

Nevertheless, this list gives an overview of all courses ever offered so it can not be regarded as up-to-date but courses tend to be the same to a high degree every academic year. They are always updated shortly before the start of the semester. The choice of courses is discussed after arrival and may be changed according to new circumstances.

It is necessary to click on the chosen course and check in its description:

- Faculty and department by which it is offered
- language of instruction
- semester

Important:

Most of the courses should be chosen at one faculty, possibly from the offerings of the department corresponding to the student's major. This department will then be considered the student's "host" department to which the application materials will be sent.

Courses offered to Erasmus program students are available for non-European exchange students. Also programs in English offered as paid programs for foreign students are available (free of charge) with the exception of The East and Central European Studies program at the Faculty of Arts ("CUFA" codes) and The Undergraduate Program in Central European Studies ("YBAU" codes) at the Faculty of Humanities. Exchange students can be admitted to one or two courses of these programs, if the capacity allows it, only after admission to a department's regular courses. The CET program ("YBAC" codes) at the Faculty of Humanities are available only for those exchange students who will spend a full academic year at the FH, having the opportunity to attend them in the spring semester.

After the admission by the relative faculty, the student may apply to one or two courses at another CU faculty as well.

There is also a lot of useful information on the following websites:

<http://www.cuni.cz/UKEN-191.html>

Accommodation

Accommodation of exchange students in student dormitories is arranged by the receiving faculties. They are mostly lodged in the Vetrnik and the Hvezda dormitories. A catalogue of dormitories in English is available at <http://kam.cuni.cz/KAMEN-56.html>.

Students will be required to pay booking deposit of CZK 1800 approximately 2 months before their arrival to Czech Republic and moving into the dormitory.

Students interested in a long-term rent of the dormitory place are preferred, because otherwise we have problem to house all interested incoming students, especially in the month of October (many students use dormitory capacities only as temporary accommodation instead of hostels while searching for a private lodging).

If the student moves out of the dormitory before the end of semester, there is a fine deducted from the deposit.
