Business Administration

Kobe University was the first university in Japan to have a School with the name "Business Administration." The School is proud to be the birthplace of business administration studies in Japan, and enjoys an excellent reputation among both the business and academic communities.

Undergraduate Program

The undergraduate curriculum consists of three areas: management, accounting, and commerce. The educational goal is to cultivate young leaders for business and professional societies by equipping them with practical knowledge based upon a strong foundation in the social sciences.

Ph.D. Program

Kobe University has one of the most respected graduate schools of business administration in Japan. In their first 2 years at the graduate school, with the goal of developing the core research skills necessary for the final 3 years of the program, each student, under the supervision of their advisor, selects coursework from nine core courses and three research methodology courses. Over the following 3 years, students concentrate on writing a Ph.D. thesis, in close discussion with the members of their Ph.D. dissertation committee.

Message from Faculty

SUEHIRO Hideo Professor Game Theory

Kobe University supports a full range of management studies, ranging from clinical and applied research to the basic science of management. My research field belongs to the latter category, and focuses on the discipline called game theory. Game theory is the mathematical science that looks at individual behaviors from the perspective of rationality and intelligence in human interactions. As demonstrated by awarding of the 1994 Nobel Prize in economics to three game theorists, game theory has made great contributions to the development of economics. I use game theory to study organizational behaviors including cooperation, leadership, and teamwork in business organizations. As of April 2015, Kobe University offers Global Master's Programs (GMAPs) in the fields of Business Administration, Economics and Law. In GMAPs, all coursework and research supervision are conducted in English. Global field research/practicum is incorporated into the curriculum to bridge research with practice in a global context. For instance, the GMAP in management is the SESAMI (Strategic Entrepreneurship and Sustainability Alliance Management Initiatives) Program, which emphasizes entrepreneurship and sustainability along with strategic and marketing management. The SESAMI Program offers the Ph.D. as well as the Master's degree.

MBA Program

In 1989, the School established an MBA program for practicing managers and professionals in response to the needs of the professional community. The School has developed a unique pedagogy of Research-Based Education. Under this method, students who share similar interests in resolving contemporary business problems form a project team, develop and refine a research theme, and develop a resolution through theoretical modeling as well as by conducting field research. The MBA program has been accredited and rated Excellent by ABEST21.

Student's Voice

Lara Makowski International Student Federal Republic of Germany

Located on top of Mt. Rokko, with a stunning view over the city and the sea, Kobe University's School of Business Administration is the perfect place to create, pursue, and accomplish your dreams in the exciting world of business. With excellent professors from all over the world, a high level of education, and a wide range of courses, Kobe University lives up to its reputation as the first—and one of the best business schools in Japan. The graduate school offers the classical program, as well as the new and experimental SESAMI program; for the adventurous, these can even be combined. The beautiful campus, in harmony with the natural beauty of Kobe, provides you with inspiration, and the friendly international team of Kobe University always is there to offer support, help, and advice. Kobe University is challenging but motivating and definitely worth it, so come and enjoy an excellent life as a student of Kobe University!
