

Curriculum Policy of the Graduate School of Economics, Kobe University

Graduate School of Economics, Kobe University designs specific curriculums for Master's Program and Doctoral Program in accordance with the Degree Awarding Policy.

1. Master's Program

We provide core courses in microeconomics, macroeconomics and also various courses in the eight fields of specialization to equip students with high level of expert knowledge in economics

We provide the master's thesis supervision to equip students with the skill sets to logically analyze the real world issues based on economics.

2. Doctoral Program

We provide highly specialized courses in the eight fields of specialization in order to equip students with knowledge of higher level in economics. Students will have to take the qualifying examination and the foreign language examination to demonstrate their understanding of the core knowledge in economics as well as their foreign language ability.

We provide the doctoral dissertation supervision by the staff to equip students with the skill to conduct highly original academic research independently.